

The first USAID FEWS-NET Haiti Weather Hazards Benefits Assessment

Of the 2006 Season
April 6 – 12, 2006

Mainly dry conditions occasionally interrupted by showers have generally resulted in favorable conditions for land preparation and planting. During the period, rainfall is expected to increase, generally favoring recently sown crops, rejuvenating pastures and increasing water supplies in the region. However, some localized flash flooding is possible.

