

The USAID FEWS-NET

Haiti Weather Hazards and Benefits Assessment

For
April 5 –11, 2007

Favorable conditions have increased soil moisture across Hispaniola, especially the northern portions of the island. These early season rains, however have also caused localized flooding across sections of the island. Additional rains are expected during the coming week. These rains could aggravate conditions, but will also benefit agriculture and increase water resources throughout the region.

