

The USAID FEWS-NET

Haiti Weather Hazards and Benefits Assessment

For
September 27 – October 3, 2007

A good first cropping season is being followed by a second season of similarly good conditions. Rainfall has been plentiful. At times, however, heavy rainfall caused damage to crops and infrastructure, and during particularly severe events, displacing people. These events primarily occurred in southern Haiti. The outlook for the coming period is favorable with additional rainfall across Hispaniola.